Her life isn't what she expected. At 31, she's returned to her home town of Plainsboro, Alabama, her daughter on her hip. She's stuck in a dead-end job selling real estate, just making ends meet, with the help of her family. Her life is turned upside down when a rich, enigmatic stranger walks through her door. His past is elusive – his behavior both clumsy and, at times, thoughtful. Thrown together by a worldwide storm, together they attempt to save who they can, and defend themselves and her daughter. Forced to confront his past, she tries to learn if she can really ever trust The Stranger.
